

Books available for review (Environmental Values)

November 2018

The journal Environmental Values is looking for academic staff, postdoctoral researchers and postgraduate researchers to provide critical academic reviews for the journal (around 1000 words in length). This is an excellent opportunity to engage in an area of research in which you have experience or a research interest. It also counts as an academic publication and can be a great way of showing scholarly engagement in a field.

Below, there are selections of recent publications, which are open to review.

If you are interested in providing a review for consideration by the journal, please could you contact Dr Ewan Woodley (e.j.woodley@exeter.ac.uk) for further information.

Options for reviews:

1. Select a book from the list of publications below (this is providing a review has not yet been commissioned for a specific text – Ewan Woodley can confirm this when contacted);

OR

2. Suggest a book that we can order for you to review. Publications must fall within the remit of the journal.

Many thanks,

Dr Ewan Woodley
Reviews Editor for Geography, Socio-economics and Politics.
